HOW IS DIAMOND FREAK DIFFERENT FROM THE COMPETITION?

How does the “color-changing” technology work?

The so-called “color-changing” effect in Diamond Freak products does not come from pH- or heat-sensitive dyes, but rather from the natural physical properties of the hydrogel itself.

When exposed to the skin’s natural temperature, the hydrogel activates, allowing the serum and active ingredients to be absorbed. During this process, the hydrogel gradually becomes more transparent. This visual change signals that the ingredients are being delivered deep into the skin.

How is this technology different from standard hydrogel?

While standard hydrogel masks maintain the same appearance throughout use, this technology provides a gradual shift in transparency, reflecting the actual absorption process of the ingredients.

This makes the experience more interactive and gives the user confidence that the product is truly working.

HOW IS DIAMOND FREAK DIFFERENT FROM THE COMPETITION?

Why is this technology better?

The transformation in transparency provides a unique sensory experience and a visual signal, enhancing user satisfaction.

This technology combines functionality with an engaging experience, making the product more memorable and ideal for promotion across visual channels.

What is the production process?

The process begins with the development of a hydrogel base using functional polymers and active ingredients that benefit the skin.

After casting and gelling into sheet form, the mask is cut and infused with serum.

No artificial dyes are used to create the transparency effect — it occurs naturally as the hydrogel becomes thinner and loses opacity under the skin's temperature.

All products undergo rigorous quality control for absorption rate, transparency shift, and skin safety.
